

1. Informations générales :

Titre du cours :	Gender and European Integration History
NOM de l'enseignant·e :	Simon Godard	Semestre :	Spring
Public visé :	☐ 1 ^{ère} année ☐ 2 ^{ème} année ☒ 1 ^{ère} année et 2 ^{ème} année	Langue :	☐ anglais
Nombre maximal d'étudiant·es :	24	Organisation du cours :	☐ 9 séances de 2h

2. Résumé du cours :

The process of European integration is multifaceted and began well before institutions were established around the ECSC and EEC in the 1950s. While Hartmut Kaelble had already emphasized the importance of studying the convergence of European societies in the longue durée (Kaelble, 1986; 2021; 2024), more recent historiography has come to challenge the very idea of “Europeanisation” (Greiner, Pichler and Vermeiren, 2022).

The concept, insofar as it analyses the forms of convergence taking place at the level of European societies – and thus producing Europe “from below” – is nevertheless useful. However, studies on the role of women, as well as analyses of gender, are still lacking in European history. How did gender issues impact European integration?

Through the reading of scholarly texts, collective analysis of sources, and personal research, this class aims to address European integration through the lens of gender. The first stage will be to highlight the contribution of women’s networks to bringing European societies closer together. Then, we will examine the place of feminism and reflections on gender in the development of European values, which today help to set Europe apart globally. In doing so, particular attention will be paid to the different experiences of gender and feminism in Western Europe and in Central and Eastern Europe during the Cold War and after the fall of the Berlin Wall.

3. Pré-requis éventuels :

B2 English

Students must already have studied a history class at the IEP or at another university.

4. Modalités de contrôle des connaissances et des compétences envisagées :

- Participation aux discussions collectives d'articles
- Présentation d'une source en cours
- Examen oral terminal

5. Description détaillée du cours (facultatif)